

Air Conditioning Service & Installation

Installing an air conditioning system is not only an investment in your home, but also in your family's comfort as well. Selecting the right system for your home can be a complicated decision. What air conditioner should I get? What efficiency rating best suits my needs? How much will it cost to maintain?

If these questions seem confusing and daunting then have no fear, the experts at Mitchell can help you select the best system for your unique situation. They will examine your home, its construction, utility costs, and many other factors before recommending the system that is right for you. Their goal is to help you find the system that will keep your family comfortable as efficiently and economically as possible.

If you have an air conditioning system that's more than 10 years old or have recently renovated your home, you may want to have one of our experts review your situation as well. Over the past decade, air conditioning technology has improved a great deal thanks to more stringent industry standards. Your old unit could be costing you significantly more money to operate and maintain when compared to the cost associated with a new, high-efficiency system.

Whether you're installing a unit for the first time or upgrading your existing system, allow our experts to point you in the right direction. Click on one of the following links for additional information on our air conditioning installation services, state and federal tax credits, and air conditioning service contracts. As always, you can speak with one of our air conditioning experts today by calling (800) 237-3835.